VETERAN COMPESATION CLAIM

To support a claim for service connection, the evidence must show:

- You had an injury in service, or a disease that began in or was made permanently worse during service, or there was an event in service that caused an injury or disease, AND
- You have a current physical or mental disability. This may be show by medical evidence or by lay evidence of persistent and recurrent symptoms of disability that are visible or observable; AND
- A relationship exists between your current disability and an injury, disease, symptoms, or event in service. This may be shown by medical records or medical opinions or, in certain cases, by lay evidence. However, under certain circumstances, VA may presume that certain current disabilities were caused by service, even if there is no specific evidence proving this in your particular claim. The cause of a disability is presumed for the following Veterans who have certain diseases:
 - Former prisoners of war;
 - Veterans who have certain chronic or tropical disease that become evident within a specific period of time after discharge from service;
 - Veterans who were exposed to ionizing radiation, mustard gas, or Lewisite while in service;
 - Veterans who were exposed to certain herbicides, such as by serving in Vietnam; or
 - Veterans who served in the Southwest Asia theater of operations during the Gulf War.

To support a claim for service connection based upon a period of active duty training, the evidence must show:
